

CRACK IN THE MIRROR

SYNOPSIS

Scott (Robby Benson) and Vanessa (Tawny Kitaen) are young, professional and living on Park Avenue. But Scott has lost his Wall Street job, and Vanessa is still climbing the ladder in advertising. They're feeling the pressure: the rent, the car, and the recreational cocaine are costing a lot.

Downtown, in his expensive loft, another young "businessman" is feeling a different kind of pressure: Butchie (Kevin Gray) a smooth and ice-cold cocaine dealer, has been selling watered down drugs and blaming a local mob chief, Charlie Buick (Danny Aiello). Buick's organization comes down hard, killing one of Butchie's street dealers. A drug war has begun.

Buick sends Angelo (Tony Gillan), his young nephew, to make a "hit" on Butchie.

Angelo, inexperienced, goofs up the hit and Butchie realizes he's got to close shop and lie low for a while. As he's packing, chance brings him another option: Scott, returning a pound of cocaine that his best friend Dwayne (Cliff Bemis) "found." In reality, Dwayne has been secretly pushing for Butchie – and stealing a little. Butchie suspected, so Dwayne has to get rid of his stash. He gave it to Scott. Scott, recognizing Butchie's distinctive pink ribbons on the package, has now brought it to the dealer, hoping the "good deed" will square his unpaid drug bills.

Butchie has another idea. He asks Scott to "take over" the business for a couple of weeks while he's "out of town." Scott, though reluctant, is lured in by big, fast money. He lies to Vanessa and secretly enters the dangerous, roller-coaster life of a high-class coke dealer. Butchie goes underground, contacting Scott about impending deals through a pair of criminals, "Tin Man" (Mark Margolis) and "The Wiz" (Jihmi Kennedy). The money begins rolling in for Scott... but Angelo and his uncle Charlie Buick are still out there, vengeful...

When Vanessa stumbles upon Scott's secret business, the lines between his "temporary job" and his life begin to blur. The high of the drug money and the drugs themselves overtake the couple, bringing with them unexpected violence, betrayal, and an inescapable price. In Charlie and Butchie's murderous world, Scott, Vanessa and Angelo are brought face to face with the nightmare underside of their ambitions. When they all come together in the end, they must fight their way past the terrifying web of drugs to redemption.